Dedication

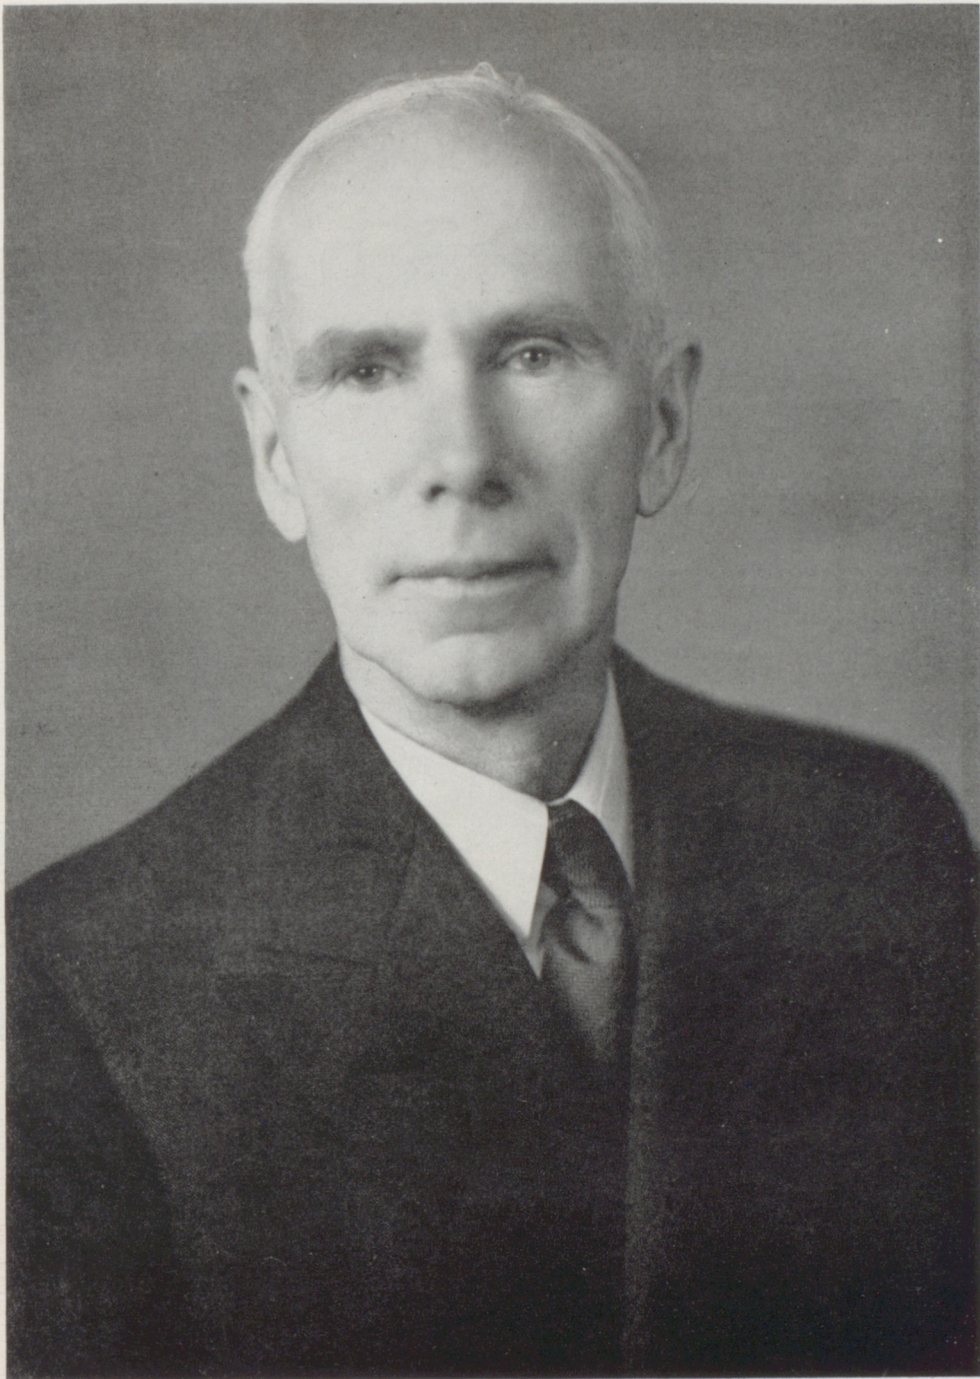

TO FREDERIC G. KENNEDY

For the work of your hands that have built when building was needed
and guided when guidance
was due,

For the work of your philosophy that has made this school one with opportunity equal for all,

For the work of your heart that not merely looked to our future
but was our future,
We are deeply grateful.

To you, sir,
we dedicate this book.

Frederic G. Kennedy, Principal

Foreword

For our Tamarack theme this year we have photographed the bridges of Spokane; but there are other bridges that we could not photograph—symbolic bridges that span the intangible dimension of time—the bridges of preparation that lie between the past and the future.

Education is one of these bridges. It is what the poet might call a bridge between the dull community of ignorance and the giant metropolis of intelligence. Oftentimes, it is the bridge between success and failure.

Education here at North Central has meant more than the mechanical memorization of facts and figures. To those of us who have studied here it has meant, also, the learning of how to live. It has taught us both tolerance and appreciation of the people we are to live with for the rest of our lives. It has taught us how to laugh at ourselves and how to laugh with our friends. It has taught us to be real people.

"See you tomorrow!"

"What do you have next class?"

Contents

This is our diary
of North Central's past year.
Some of the things
you will see of us here
are:

A bit of our history and language,
Some scenes of our plays in dramatics,

A part of our study in science,
And some of our work in mathematics,

A view of our clubs and our clubrooms,

Our study of shopwork and arts,
And snaps of our N. C. athletics.

You'll see here
A bit of our hearts.

councils represent the whole student body. The chief duty of this organization is to promote the general welfare at North Central and to better the student-teacher relationship in every way possible.

Playing "Santa" to the needy orphans at Christmas, promoting the clothing for the people of Europe, planning the senior receptions and enforcing the traffic and conduct rules kept this organization busy the year round.

Projects that were tried for the first time in the history of the Associated Student councils include: A fire drill during a convocation, a reception for the January graduates, a banquet in honor of the football team with Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Bradford and Mr. Bonamy as advisers.

THE GIRLS' LEAGUE was organized in 1918 by Miss Jessie Gibson, girls' adviser, who is now dean of girls at Pomona college. Its purpose is expressed by the emblem: Honor, represented by an American flag; service, by the head of a young girl; and loyalty by the Red Cross flag.

One of the most important functions of the League is the service it renders to different departments of the school. Girls may work in any of the following departments: Library, school service, Color Girls, physical education, senior counselors, room representatives, big cousins, social service, Red Cross, Girl Reserves and Camp Fire Girls.

With grades of "C" or better and ten League points earned by serving in one of these departments of the League, a girl qualifies for the Girls' League honor roll. A bronze pin is awarded for two semesters of service, a silver pin for four, gold pin for six semesters and a gold pin with a ruby for eight semesters of service. Those appearing for the first, third, fifth, seventh and ninth times receive honorable mention. Pins are awarded at special girls' convocations.

All the girls of North Central are members of the League and pay dues of ten cents a semester.

At the beginning of each semester, department meetings are held, and girls new to the school are acquainted with League work.

A group of senior girls each year act as counselors for new students and help acquaint them with the school and its functions. Older girls also act as "big cousins" on the first day of school each semester and assist newcomers in finding their way about the building.

Department heads, committee chairmen and floor chairmen of the room representatives make up the Girls' League Central council, the governing body of the League. This council is presided over by the League officers.

Officers for the fall semester were: Marjorie Scott, president; Virginia Elliott, vice president; Carolyn Freeborg, secretary; and Jane Pratt, treasurer. Spring semester officers were: Virginia Christian, president; Gerri Turley, vice president; Peggy Lund, secretary; and Marilyn Perry, treasurer.

Founded 28 years ago by the present adviser, Lowell C. Bradford, the Boys' Federation has added immeasurably to the promotion of activities among the boys at North Central.

Activities include: Keeping the service flag, which now has 75 gold stars and 1623 blue, up-to-date; presenting athletic trophies; sponsoring various counselor services; a committee to secure names of school alumni in the service; and sponsoring various dances, cons and other school projects.

The Archie Buckley Inspirational Award presented to the school by the Federation last year, is a permanent trophy inscribed with the coaching and war record of the late North Central football coach who was killed in action aboard the aircraft carrier "Saratoga." It is awarded to the football player who by his team mates is voted the greatest inspiration to the squad. Buck Hill and Frank Miyaki received the award in 1943, Bob Allen in 1944 and Lem Finley in 1945.

In an effort to show interest in potential athletes of North Central, the Federation awards trophies to the North Side champions in track and softball. Winners for 1945 were track, Garfield; and softball, Finch.

On Feb. 15, during the annual March of Dimes campaign, the Federation sponsored a dance in the gymnasium to raise money for this nation-wide polio campaign. Admission was on a voluntary basis and $27.60 was received.

Fall Federation officers were: Bill Trefry, president; Bob Leach and Bob Bleck, vice presidents; Hal Morrill, clerk; Clem Crowston, financial secretary; and Dick Kirkendall, treasurer.

Spring officers: Bob Palmer, president; Johnny Weekes, vice president; Charlie Wilson, clerk; Bob Pierce, financial secretary; and John Perko, treasurer.

Department organizations for the fall and spring respectively are: Community service heads, Frank Tessin, Don Doran. Under this department are: Civic affairs, grade school, inter-scholastic relations, entertainment, philanthropy, Junior Red Cross, service flag, News for servicemen and paper salvage.

School service department: Heads, John Weekes, Frank Tessin. Committees: Advertising, Comanche Guard, fire squad, rooters, supplies, stenography, tickets, transportation and ushering.

Personal service department: Heads, John Weekes, Frank Tessin. Committees under this department include fellowship, new boys, recreation, skating and welfare.

Vocational department: Heads, Bob Palmer, Gordon Paul. Committees: Stage, senior counselors, convocations, discussions and speakers.

A counselor service composed of senior boys to acquaint boys new to the school with the various activities is another Federation project. The boys also publish an informational pamphlet, "Tepee Talk." Bob Palmer was head of the group in the fall semester; Stan Johnson, spring.

Composed of the president, the commissioners of the traffic and grounds squads and the locker and convocation commissioners, the Conduct board has handled the disciplinary action of North Central since 1923 when it was organized.

If a student receives a conduct card and he believes it unfair, he may appeal his case to the board. Guilty, not guilty and suspended sentences are then handed down by the board. Bud Moe presided over the board for the 1945-46 school year.

In 1920, the traffic squad was organized by Lowell C. Bradford to maintain order in the halls and minimize confusion.

Because of the unsightly appearance of the campus, in 1931, a grounds squad was formed to keep the school grounds from COLOR GIRLS, a marching and cheering group, was organized in 1938 as an honorary service group for underclass girls. A small group of girls who had been active in their junior high or grade schools were selected to meet with a senior girl and the adviser, and this committee formed the basis of the present organization. Miss Verna Betz was the first adviser of the group which consisted of 20 girls.

The purpose of the group today is "to promote school spirit and interest in all athletic activities about North Central."

Officers for the fall semester were Marian Sampson, chairman; Diane Lucas, vice-chairman; Theresa Cannata, secretary; Mary Koleff, historian; and Betty Cauvel, treasurer. Spring officers were Sue Phillips, chairman; Caroline Sperry, vice-chairman and historian; and Mary Ann Barnhart, secretary-treasurer.

AS ONE of the most active groups in North Central, the Red Feathers, under the direction of Miss Elsa Pinkham, have backed every school activity they could participate in and have been willing and able workers.

"Pinkie" organized the group in the spring of 1938. Their Indian suits, which were like those used today, were designed by Miss Agnes Avent, Miss Ethel Ashley and Miss Pinkham. A contest was held to name the newly-organized group, and Gerry Moody submitted the winning name of Red Feathers. This name seemed to represent Spokane and its activities better than any other.

That spring the Red Feathers took part in a pageant called "The Good Ship North Central!" Their colorful suits attracted everyone's eye and they were received gladly as a new marching group. In the fall they also took part in the Merry-Go-Round and marched in several parades.

This year the Red Feathers have completed another successful season, having participated in many activities. They performed in their usual good style at the Merry-Go-Round game last fall before a record crowd of over 22,000 spectators. The stunt, entitled "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," was performed jointly by all four city high schools. North Central portrayed Johnny coming home to play, the other schools to home, work and church.

Swing That Gavel, Gertie!

Art Club

In 1916 Miss Bessie Curtis organized the Art club with the purpose of encouraging an interest in fine arts. Under the direction of Miss Ethel Ashley the club became one of the most active in the school. Each semester the club has a special project as well as making posters for school productions. This year under the direction of Miss Caroline Busch, art instructor, the club has helped to further the understanding and appreciation of art.

Amores Librorum

Amores Librorum meaning "lover of books" was organized in 1936 by Miss Mary Bacon, librarian. It was begun as an experiment to see if students would enjoy such a club.

Members must have a B average and if they go below that standing they are dropped from membership. Each semester every member presents several book reviews to the club. As an additional project, the club members have this past year taken charge of displays in the library.

Latin Club

Latina Societas Litterarum, meaning "Latin society of literature," was one of the first clubs organized at North Central. Miss Mary Evans started the club in 1914 with the purpose of furthering an interest in Latin and Roman history. Under the direction of Miss Helen Prince, the club took an active part in Red Cross work during the war and completed many special projects. Miss Frances Theis is adviser during Miss Prince's leave of absence.

Mathematics Club

In 1913 the Mathematics club was organized by Bruce Bartholomew. Its purpose then as now has been to promote more interest in the field of mathematics. Membership is limited to 12 boys and 12 girls. To be eligible one must have taken three semesters of mathematics with three final B's and have no grades below C in other subjects. R. A. Baldwin is the present adviser.

Thespian

The North Central chapter of the Thespian club is a part of the national society which was established in 1929. The purpose of the club is to promote an interest and skill in dramatics and to honor the students taking part in plays and the production of plays. The club is not a secret society and students earn their membership. Miss Grace Gorton, dramatics teacher, organized the club in January, 1945.

La Tertulia

La Tertulia, meaning "social gathering," is one of the oldest clubs in existence at North Central. It was organized in 1913 by Miss Edith Broomhall, a teacher in the language department at that time. Second semester Spanish students with C or better grades are eligible. Members are admitted by the vote of the group. The club has a business and social gathering every month. Miss Bertha Boehme has been adviser for the club for the past five years.

Quill and Scroll

The Edward R. Murrow chapter of Quill and Scroll was organized at North Central in the fall of 1939. Quill and Scroll is an international organization, founded at the University of Iowa in 1926. The letters I. H. S. H. S. J., which appear on the pin, stand for "International Honorary Society for High School Journalists," and only outstanding members of the News staff are eligible. Miss Mary McKenna is the adviser.

Vox Puellarum

Vox Puellarum, "voice of the girls," was organized in 1913 by R. G. Hargreaves, principal at that time, and Miss Jessie Gibson, girls' adviser. The club is a social group, whose purpose it is to develop the vocational, musical, literary and dramatic talents among the members. It is open to sophomore and junior girls with no grades below B. Miss Zelva Moeser is the present adviser.

Warriors

The newest club at North Central, the Warriors, obtained its charter last fall and began functioning on November 19. The purpose of the club is to maintain the highest standards of athletics at North Central. Each of the 40 members is pledged to live a clean life, to play hard and fair and to work for the good of the team. Don Bonamy, North Central coach, is the adviser.

Junior Red Cross Activities

WAR CHARITY DRIVES sponsored by the Red Cross were successfully conducted this year by the Junior Red Cross under the supervision of Miss Bertha Boehme, faculty adviser. The group also collected $370 in dues in the membership drive at the beginning of the fall semester.

Girls in the home rooms made colorful and lovable stuffed toy animals in October; and in November nut cups and favors were made and sent to Baxter General Hospital for use at Thanksgiving dinners. Menus, table decorations, nut cups and favors were again collected in December for Christmas dinners at Baxter. In January gift boxes supplied with toys, erasers, pencils, compasses, protractors, crayons, soap, washcloths, blotters, toothpaste and toothbrushes were sent to children of devastated areas.

Officers for the fall semester were: Donajeanne Russell, president; Dick Kirkendall, vice president; and Beverly Hale, secretary. Beverly was appointed president for the spring semester; Bob Bleck was chosen vice president; and Mary Jane Grossman was appointed secretary.

The home economics classes under the direction of Miss Bessie Graham made 24 pairs of women's pajamas, 36 infants' garments, 100 pairs of hospital slippers, 24 baby kimonas and 3 baby sleeping garments for the Red Cross.

Meetings are held at the Red Cross headquarters downtown once a month. When special drives come up, the meetings are held at school to make plans.

Extra! Extra! Red Streak Edition

● Starting as a five-column monthly nearly 29 years ago, in the fall of 1917, under the supervision of Ernest E. Green, The North Central News soon developed into a seven-column weekly, being cut to its present size of six columns in 1942 as a wartime paper-saving measure.

For ten consecutive years, The News has won All-American rating in the National Scholastic Press association contests for high school newspapers. In 1939, 1940 and 1941 it was awarded Pace-maker, the rating given to the highest of the All-American winners and the highest award given in the contest.

Four members of the News staff are selected each semester as members of the Spokane Junior Press club, and qualifying members of the staff become members of Quill and Scroll, international honor society for high school journalists. During the past year Miss Mary McKenna, News staff adviser, has been international president of Quill and Scroll society.

Tamarack

PUBLISHED FOR the first time in 1909, when North Central was founded, the Tamarack was a small, monthly magazine about the size of an ordinary school book, only thinner.

When South Central high school burned, students who had attended there came to North Central. The two student bodies published quarterly a book known as The Blue and White.

From 1912 to 1918, the name Tamarack was used with each quarterly edition of the yearbook. In 1918 North Central students published six editions of the book, each edition bearing a different title.

Again in 1924, the senior class decided upon the name Tamarack for their book and so it has remained.

EDITORIAL—Writing copy, heads and captions were: Mal Boyd, literary editor, Jeannie Ramsey, Louise Taggart.

SENIOR EDITORS—Handling senior sections of the Tamarack were: Louise Cosby, Ernest Sackett, and Mayre Lee Harris.

ART STAFF—Bob Lavigne, John Hale and Dick Haffey turned out animated cartoons, illustrations and lettering. Miss Ethel Ashley, art adviser, turns a critical eye on their work.

On the Tamarack staff this year were: Bill Deno and Gerald Deery, co-editors; Maxine McDougall, Dorothea Holien and Janet Dawe, associate editors; Mayre Lee Harris, Ernest Sackett and Louise Cosby, senior editors; Rosemary Johnson, Louise Taggart, class editors; Dave Kirk, Bill Thompson, boys' sports; Audrey Smith, girls' sports; Bob LaVigne, art editor; Dick Haffey, cartoonist; Mal Boyd, literary editor.

On the business staff were Bob Bleck, business manager; Frank Tessin, Pat Hudson, advertising manager; Mary Barland, ad solicitor. Faculty adviser was Bryson L. Jaynes.

Wesley Cameron was the staff photographer, Dale Riggins, faculty adviser for photography, and pictures were mounted by Natalie Hooke, Joan Swatman and Therese Bell. Organizations were written by Mary Barland, Geneva Withers and Stan Johnson. Miss Mary McKenna was faculty director of the book.

This 1946 edition of the Tamarack is dedicated to Frederic G. Kennedy, who is retiring from North Central after 22 years as principal.

Productions

Thirty-fourth Annual Operetta

THE THIRTY-FOURTH OPERETTA, "Pickles" or "In Old Vienna," a three-act musical comedy, was presented December 7 and 8 in the school auditorium under the direction of C. Olin Rice, music department head. Assisting Mr. Rice with dramatic and dancing instruction for the cast of nearly 150 were Miss Grace Gorton and Miss Elsa Pinkham.

The operetta, which was presented once before at North Central in 1929, has carnival time in Vienna as a setting and concerns the search of wealthy Lady Vivian Delancy for her daughter, lost in a train wreck years before. Kinski, chief of police, plots to substitute Louisa, a waitress, for the daughter, planning to marry her, and thereby winning the fortune. His plans, however, are cleverly foiled by several Americans who aid Lady Vivian in finding her real daughter, Ilona.

Arthur Crefont, young American artist, and June Pennington renew an old love affair while Jonas H. Pennington, American pickle manufacturer, and Lady Vivian decide to live a happy life together, and J. Jennison Jones, advertising expert, falls in love with the gypsy girl, Ilona.

Those taking leading parts were: Paul Schaffer, Hans; Donajeanne Russell, Louisa; Ben Weaver, Kinski; Bob Pierce, BUMSKI; Howard Miller, RUMSKI; Wally Gottwig, J. Jennison Jones; George Till, Jigo; Mary Koch, Ilona; Dan Penny, Arthur Crefont; Marjorie Scott, June Pennington; Dick Hawes, Jonas H. Pennington; Mary Ben-nion, Lady Vivian Delancy; Gene Hendricks, bellhop; and Flora Mae Wood, gypsy girl.

Eighth Biennial Doll Shop

A SPLENDID ARRAY of professional-quality talent was shown off to advantage in the three performances of the eighth biennial Doll Shop, presented March 20, 21 and 22.

An enthusiastic audience overflowed the auditorium at each of the three performances.

The production was dedicated to Principal F. G. Kennedy. The dedication, written by P. H. Nygaard, head of the mathematics department, reads:

For a generation his dolls have been the boys and girls of North Central; his doll shop, the school which has reflected his devotion to them. Although he could not arrange to have everyone of them equipped with the magic of song and dance, each one left his shop sturdy and fine, ready to brave the banging around of a fickle world. To Raggedy Anns and gorgeous Parisians, to jaunty soldiers arrayed for battle, to Grumpys and Happys and all the others, he strove diligently to impart the design of a proud master's dream. The high regard with which, during all this time, the Red and Black trade mark of his plant has been accepted in the market places, manifests the eminence of his success.

This Doll Shop program, the last one to be guided by his understanding leadership, we dedicate to him, our principal, Frederic G. Kennedy.

Gloria Johnson, played the role of Annabelle, the frivolous Cape Cod damsel.

Enacting the role of the dashing sea captain was Dale Ure, who succeeded in catching Annabelle.

Seniors Present "Feathers in a Gale"

"FEATHERS IN A GALE," a three-act play, was presented by the senior class at a matinee and evening performance on November 15 and 16, under the direction of Miss Grace Gorton, dramatic coach.

The plot is centered about a frivolous Cape Cod girl, Annabelle, and her two friends, Matilda and Phoebe. Annabelle has her cap set for a handsome sea captain, much to the dismay of her two friends and the prim Cape Cod neighborhood. She flaunts the authority of the selectmen by rescuing two friends from the "Widow's Vendue." This was the grim custom by which if a widow got into debt before making a second catch, she was put up at auction as a domestic to the highest bidder.

The hilarious circumstances in which they found themselves, as well as the dramatic love scene at the end, were welcomed enthusiastically by both audiences.

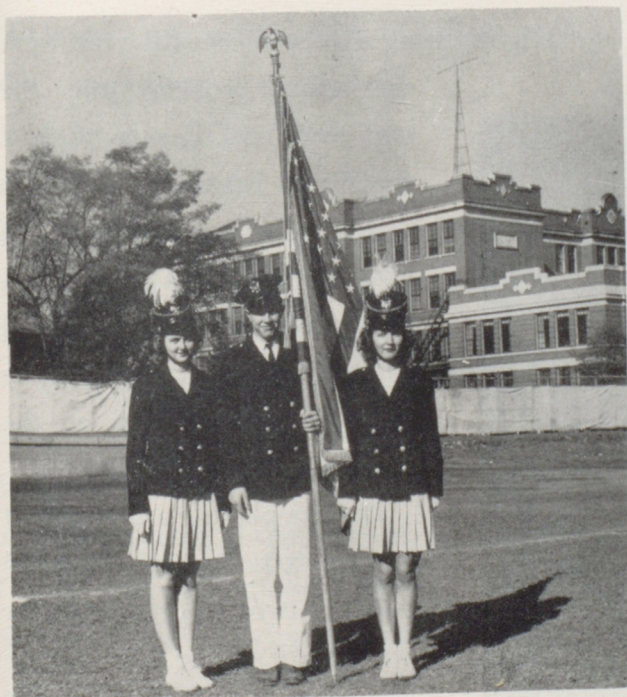

Portraying characters in the play were: Donajeanne Russell, Marilyn Perry, Jim Henager, Gloria Johnson, Marylyn Meisner, Bob LaVigne, Jack Gray, Dale Ure, Paul Burgess, Jeanette Carlson and Grace Swift.

"The old sea dog meets the ladies" shows Bob LaVigne, Captain Ebenezer, shaking hands with Gloria Johnson. Wringing their hands, Marilyn Perry and Donajeanne Russell look on.

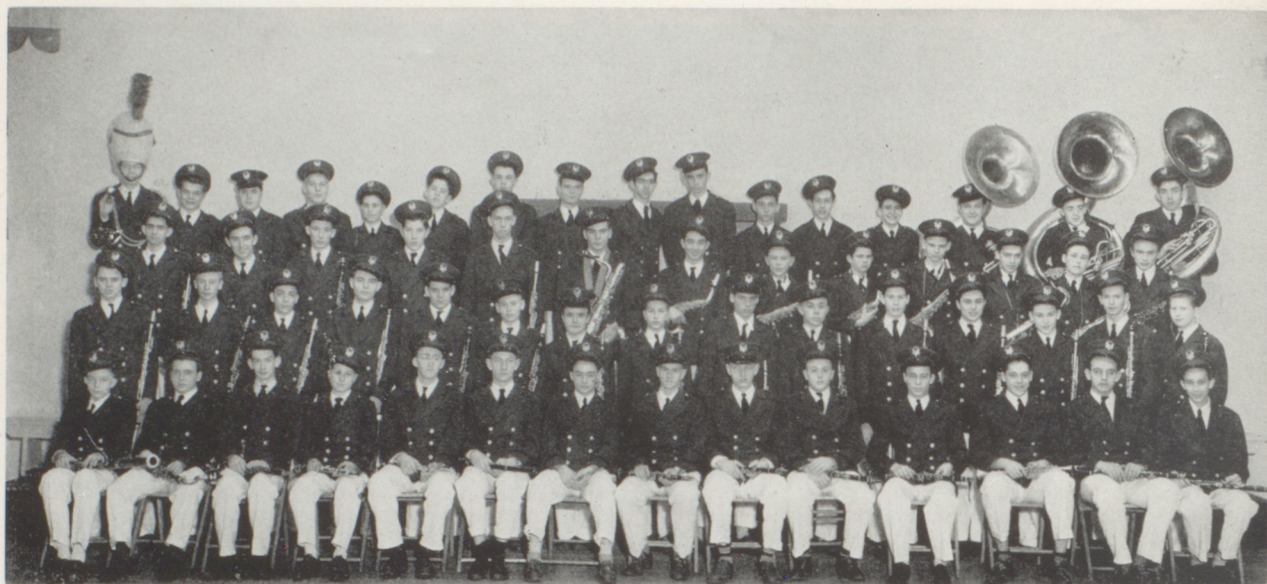

MERRY-GO-ROUND GAME—A record-breaking throng of 21,000 football fans packed Gonzaga stadium on September 14 for the annual Vic Dessert Merry-Go-Round football game in which all four city high schools participated. Here the four school bands are assembled on the field before the game for the national anthem.

Strike Up the Band

POSSESSING THE LARGEST enrollment in its history, the North Central band under the direction of Lowell C. Bradford entered into a varied season of performances.

Highlighting a very successful year were the annual concert and the trip to Wenatchee to play at the Apple Festival.

The band started things out with a bang last fall when they played in several football games and took part in the big halftime stunt staged at the Merry-Go-Round game.

Besides playing a major part in that extravaganza, the band put on two other stunts for the benefit of the fans. These included "Stormy Weather," a fantasy presented for the approval of the observers at the North Central-Gonzaga game, and the mass stunt with Lewis and Clark for the Shrine game.

As a sideline, the group marched in three victory parades, one of them under the inspection of General Wainwright. They also presented programs for the Junior Chamber of Commerce lecture series and at Havermale Junior high school.

At Wenatchee on Saturday, May 4, the band was a part of the spectacular parade in honor of the Queen of the Festival. They were given the award for the best marching band there and received a $75 cash award for first place. They also played in the park in the afternoon and played the processional march for the famed 300 voice Wenatchee chorus.

Following the Wenatchee trip, the band took part in the spring festival along with the orchestra, chorus and Three-fives.

L i t e r a r y

SOME OF THE Rocky Mountains in northern Montana are indescribably magnificent. If there is such a thing as delicate ruggedness, that country is such—delicate in the sense that one standing by a lake shore looking off to the horizon sees a fragile irregular outline similar to the edges of a chip of coral—rugged in the sense of being too great for one to visualize as a whole, and too irregular to scale down on maps. It is the kind of land that makes one think that some great angry god beat at the earth with the broken blade of an axe; then let Time fill the crevices with the bluest water on earth. It is a country of mountains and lakes that would seem to dwarf a mere accident in the lives of men; and yet, I know that I shall remember an accident that happened up there long after I have forgotten that country of mountains and lakes.

Evenings, the boys in the blister rust camp sprawled on the shore sands of Spar Lake and watched the evening sun paint poetry across the western sky.

Being the camp boss, I did not have to climb the hills with the boys. That was the work of the foreman, and I was only too happy to stay in camp filling out government forms and tending to camp duties that were my responsibilities. It was the evenings, though, that proved my days worth working through. I took some pencils and my notebook and went down to the lakeshore to scribble out the crude descriptions that natural beauty inspires.

The boys came down from the hillsides, put away their grub hoes and root diggers, and flopped onto their cots to catch a bit of rest before dinner. Then after washing up and finishing their meal, they flocked out of the mess hall and headed straightway for the lake.

Mike Daniels, a young field-crew leader, followed by Jerry Beasley, Paul Hansen and Neil Adams, picked up several fishing poles and started out across the lake in a rowboat. Some of the other boys took a postman's holiday by hiking up a trail that they believed would take them to another lake.

The bullies of the camp picked the butt of their cruel tricks when the camp first started. The boy they chose was one Gregory St. Vincent, a quiet, unassum-ing delicately handsome lad with a sincere passion for poetry. Greg spent a good many of the evening hours sitting on the beach reading the Bible. I believe he read more for the beauty of the words than for the philosophy of the text. Now and then he looked up at me and said, "Oh, gosh! How that man John could write! Listen, Boyd—'And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the fields keeping watch over their flock by night. And lo! The Angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them, and they were sore afraid.'—It's just the way he said it—not a word out of rhythm."

When the evenings darkened so as to make his reading and my writing impossible, we picked up our books and sauntered up to the tents—he to his, and I to mine.

Greg was bunked in a tent with five other boys. I was alone in mine. Night after night he ran over to my tent and entered red-faced and shaking-angry.

It was one of these particular nights, that he walked into my tent and leaned against the center pole. Out of force of habit I asked, "Are they at it again?"

He sat down on the foot of the bed and answered, "Oh, I don't know, Boyd. I just don't know. Tonight I no more than got my feet under the covers when I felt something cold moving. Oh, God! A snake as big as your arm. I don't know. I guess I just haven't got the guts to take it—just no guts!"

I told him to stay in my tent that night but he shook his head and wiped away the tears that had only then begun to well up in his eyes.

"No, I'll go back in a minute. I can shake out my covers before I climb in." A moment later he disappeared through the slit in the tent and the flap fell closed behind him.

That had not been the first such night. Times previously Greg had come to my tent picking the poison ivy from his underclothes or wiping rotten eggs from his legs. One night when he had moved his cot out of his tent to a place under some trees, he had been awakened by the jolt of a small fir tree that had been felled across the foot of his cot. In the woods he had heard the voice of Mike Daniels laughing and then the quick padding of feet. Greg had limped to work the next morning—the side of his ankle swollen to the size of a bowling ball.

The evening following the snake episode Greg struck out for the beach again with his Bible under his arm. I took my notebook and walked down to the beach to sit in the still-brilliant sun. I stretched out with my hands over my eyes and listened to Greg turn the pages of his book.

I heard voices and looked up to see who it was. The figures of Mike Daniels and his regular tag-alongs came around the knoll that lay between the lake and the camp. Greg looked up from his book a moment, then focused his eyes back on the page; but they did not move and I knew he was not reading.

Mike sauntered up beside him and chuckled, "What are ya tryin' to do, boy? Read your way into glory?"

From behind Mike, Neil laughed hoarsely, "He can't make it up to heaven—not Gregor, the beggar. He's gonna go down, that boy. He's gonna go way down!"

Greg gave no answer so the boys ambled off, laughing at him. Greg looked up at me like a whipped pup; then went back to reading his book.

The sun was not so bright as it had been a moment before, and finally the shadow of the mountain crept up over me making me shiver. I picked up my notebook and started out for the point, a promontory of rock that jugged out into the lake. It was about half a mile around to the point, and when I arrived and climbed up the shale side to the top, I was in the sun again and it seemed almost as bright as the noon. The air was clear and I could see Greg stretched out in the distance. He looked like an ant at that length. Up behind him curled the smoke from the campfires and over to the other side of him I could make out the other boys playing along the beach. I settled myself down and began to write.

It was about fifteen minutes later that I heard the laughter of Mike Daniels, and I looked up to see the four boys standing around Greg shouting and laughing. Suddenly I saw Mike reach down and grab the book. He started running for the board walk that stretched out to the float on the lake.

"This is too much!" I thought to myself. "That kid has taken enough." I climbed down the side of the point and started on a fast lope around the lake toward the float.

Greg was up and chasing Mike, and the two boys, one twenty feet behind the other, raced onto the float and skidded to a stop near the outer edge. Mike tossed the book into the water, then ducked aside as Greg lunged at him. Greg leaped at Mike again and caught him by the arm. With a quick jab Mike knocked Greg away and ran over to the far edge of the float. Greg jumped across the planks and dived for Mike again. He missed and caught Mike's foot in his shoulder spinning him around and backward. Greg slipped back frantically; then suddenly his feet shot out from beneath him and his whole frame lurched headlong. Even from where I was, I heard the sharp sickening crack of his head smashing into the corner of the float. Mike, in dodging away, slipped dizzily to the opposite side of the float, hung balanced there a flashing second, then splashed into the water. "Somebody help!" coughed Mike hysterically. "I can't swim!"

Greg raised himself up and I could hear him cry, "Oh, God! He fell in!" Greg got up and careened to the edge of the float from where Mike had fallen. He looked into the water where Mike was splashing wildly. Greg leaned over, stretched out his arms in a futile effort to pull Mike out, and reeled unsteadily; then collapsed in mid-air and crumpled into the water beside Mike's floundering form.

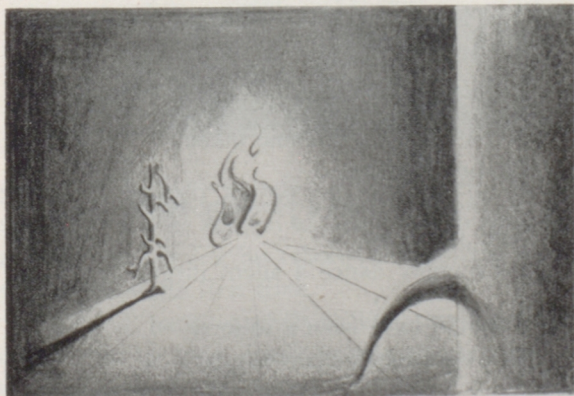

Crazed to senselessness, Mike grabbed at the solidness of the unconscious Greg, and using him like a cork lifesaver, he thrust Greg under the water in order to push himself above the surface. Hysterically Mike threw himself at the float and clutched the side plank.

While my feet were pounding the sand under me I saw the other boys were out on the float. Jerry Beasley was in the water looking for Greg. The rest were pulling Mike out of the water.

I reached the walk as Jerry Beasley was coming up to the surface for about the eighth time. This time he had Greg's hair clutched in his hand. Mike was sitting in a blubbing heap on the float gurgling out, "Oh, my God! He's gone down! He's gone down!"

While the other boys helped Jerry out of the water, I lifted up Greg and laid him down on the float. He was blue-blooded blue; and I could see that Mike was right.

Greg had gone down.

I REMEMBER

By IVAN BENTON

First Prize Essay

I remember a valley where the evergreen trees were always full of color; and the grass and flowers, in summer, were radiant with life. Tall mountain peaks stood guard over the forests and the scattered farms, which were nestled in the folds of the mountain ranges. Cheerful birds fluttered from tree to tree sending their sweet songs through the fresh summer air.

It was mid-summer, but everything was still green and fresh. Our gardens were growing and flowers were in bloom around the house. As usual, in summer, we were outside most of the time, working in the warmth of the sun or swimming in the river that flowed through our farm. Every day, we youngsters spent hours in swimming and playing on the sandy beaches.

One idyllic day we noticed a large cloud of black smoke just over a heavily timbered range of mountains. I was only seven and did not realize the extent of the danger, but my mother was alarmed. The fire was about eight miles away when we first saw it, but it soon was caught in a strong breeze and moved rapidly in our direction. Before we had time to do much, the fire had reached the top and came raging down the mountain side. Our little farm stood directly in the path of the hungry monster.

The need for help in the harvest field had taken my father far from home, leaving my mother and her five children, all under twelve years of age, to escape the clutches of the huge forest fire as best they could.

The sun had turned to orange as the smoke arose in front of it and this color rapidly deepened into red. Then finally the sun completely disappeared behind the thick smoke screen. Our chickens, thinking night was at hand, went to roost, although it was still early afternoon. A strange darkness deepened over the land and we grew more and more frightened as the air became filled with hot cinders.

At length, realizing that we would be burned alive if we remained, we said farewell to our home and started on foot for town, seven miles distant. Before we had gone far, sparks had set fire to brush piles and trees all around us. Burning trees and limbs seemed to hurl themselves at us as we went by. Many times we had to break into a run to get out of their path. Before we went out of sight we glanced back for our final sorrowful look at our home. Flames were leaping up the sides of the house and the roof was burning ruthlessly. Then our house and barn collapsed, leaving but a leaping sea of flames.

By that time thousands of acres were burning furiously; and as the velocity of the wind increased, the fire began to close in upon us. My oldest sister grabbed my hand and dragged me over logs and brush, never sparing me time to recover my footing. By this time the air was so full of smoke it stung our eyes and made it difficult for us to breathe. We traveled at a rapid walk which very often broke into a run.

After fleeing for about three miles, we met a man in a car who, seeing that his own farm was surrounded by fire, took us in and rushed toward his home to rescue his wife and day-old baby who had been trapped in the house. By this time the main country road was impassable; but knowing a logging road that approached his home from a different direction, he drove frantically to save his family. He dashed to his house across a freshly plowed field which was surrounded with angry leaping flames. Grabbing his wife and baby into his arms, he rushed out just as a tornado, developed by the extreme heat of the fire, ripped off the roof and wrenched the house from its foundation. Burning trees were twisted out of the ground and tumbled violently through the air. In our desperate struggle to reach safety we had to stop often to chop burning trees out of the road and in places we had to drive between sheets of hissing flames. Finally he got his precious cargo to safety. We were completely exhausted and some of us were found to be severely burned.

The forestry service succeeded in checking the fire after it had burned the timber and underbrush. It slowed up considerably when it reached semi-open country and eventually was put out completely. When we returned to our farm it looked very different from our last view of it. Charred snags and black fallen trees made the scene very miserable and dreary. Only a heap of ashes, melted glass, and iron marked the place where our home had stood. Our belongings had all been burned except the clothes we had on, and a small Bible that we had taken with us on our race for life.

New trees have been planted by the forest service and they are growing vigorously. Wild game has returned and all of the one hundred fifty farmers who lost their homes now have new ones and are happy again. There is a new background of forest green, though the trees are all small yet. The river banks are rank with shrubbery once more. But the setting will never be the same as in my childhood. And I never, never will forget the horror of that journey through the forest fire—a tunnel through hell.

HOW CAN I ASK THEM?

By Mal Boyd

First Prize Poem

How can I ask them?

I've combed my hair and pressed my suit,
Yet stand here stammering,
Or worse, mute.

Then again the music starts
And I have not danced yet.

By me flash the laughing eyes
And whirling pleated skirts.
I back to the wall and nurse
My own self-conscious hurts.
And by me, too, are other men
Rushing across the floor,
And I would start and time again
Turn toward the door.

How can I ask them?

What line? What phrase? What can I say?
They wouldn't want to, anyway.
How can I ask them?
And if I should,
If I should cross that floor,
Their laughing eyes would follow
And I would swallow hard,
And wonder what I came for.

And if I asked,
If I asked, "Is this one taken?"
I'd be mistaken.
A "sorry" brings a blushing serge,
And if a "no,"
I'd dumbly dance a silent dirge.

I should have been a salmon
In a speechless, silver run.

JOURNEY'S END

I didn't actually look at him until we were about five miles out of Springview. I was sitting with him, just two seats in back of the driver.

I noticed his hands first—unusual hands, fascinating. They were a little larger than most men's and his knuckles were thick and knotted. The swollen veins stretched his paper thin skin, taut, like pulsing, throbbing rivers in dry wasteland.

He moved one heavy one to the worn brown package on his knees. The movement was slow, sure, knowing, like that of a Tom on a back lot fence. It seemed odd to see a mountain man fondle such a common looking bundle.

I must have been staring at him, for he looked up at me, startled. "Right nice day for a ride, ma'am." I could clearly see that he wanted to chat a little so I said "Why yes, yes, it is a lovely day for traveling." I hurriedly looked out the window to convince myself.

A worried frown appeared between his eyes and he seemed to be grasping for the right words to put together. "Ya know, ma'am, I ain't really hankered ta talk for quite a spell, but now," and his eyes caressed the package in his lap, "I seem ta find a hepo' things I want ta say and well, ain't nobody that'll set still long enough ta listen ta a babbling old fool like me."

Suddenly I felt sorry for this plain, rather strange man with his labored speech and shapeless parcel. I nodded mutely in sympathetic understanding; and he seemed to take strength from that minute gesture for he relaxed and looked at me squarely for the first time.

I settled back, smiled at him, and prepared myself for a long, uninteresting dissertation on the ailments of aged men.

He looked out the window at Montana's Rockies before he spoke. "I got me a fine son, ma'am, near six foot and plenty husky. Split two cord o' pine one day, just a young'un too, lanky like most, but powerful shoulders on 'im." He chuckled and mused a bit before adding, "Didn't never have no reg'lar ma. Glory died with the pox when heuz two, but every gal uz his ma, and believe me them Ridge folks sure tuk good care a Dave 'n me. His Ma called him David John, from the Bible you know, but some hows it got shortened ta just Dave.

"Dave he uz alluz good 'bout chores an' goin' ta Sunday school, so's when he left Deep Ridge for Salt Lake ta be a soldier none o' us old ones uz su'prised.

"Oh, I missed Dave. Didn't have talk after sunset of an evening or didn't have anyone ta trap with, but I knowed he uz needed where he was."

I could see that he was unaccustomed to long speeches for his lips were quivering and his temples were damp when he turned to me for reassurance. I nodded again, unable to speak, and he went on.

"My Dave went across 'fore long and then they wrote and said he was sure 'nuff hero! Course I knowed he would be, but"—here the old man faltered; licking thin, dry lips he softly murmured, "but my Davy, he didn't stay there long. Davy uz alluz careful too; never did take a long shot, 'cept once." Here his shoulders sagged and thin shoulder blades poked sharply from his frayed blue shirt. "See Dave didn't figure on there bein' more'n one when he run fer them colors. 'Stead o' one there uz nine an' poor Davy didn't ever know he never got ta Old Glory. They cremated him 'long last April—over in Africa they said it was."

He smoothed the wrinkles out of the top of the now dusty package and plucked nervously at the thick string which bound it.

"So now I'm takin' my little Davy home, home ta his crazy old pine tree, the crooked one on the south lot. The fruit of twenty four years wrapped in a tattered, grimy piece of colored cloth. Ma'am! Ma'am! You ain't leavin'?"

The weary bus swayed to a stop. It wasn't my stop and I hadn't intended to get off there; but I clutched my grip with sweating palms and stumbled from the impatient bus. I stood there, watching living death ride over the crest of the hill, and all I could do was stare futilely at the flapping mud guards on the rear wheels.

THE PEOPLE

By BILL THOMPSON

Second Prize Essay

Reading a history book I get the idea that America was built and strengthened by such men as Ben Franklin, George Washington, Andy Jackson, Grant, Lincoln, the Carnegies, the Roosevelts and Wilson. Trouble is that too many people believe the history books.

I say that America was built and strengthened not because of a few thousand men, but because of a billion men! A billion men working, fighting, forging a new nation, that was defying the history books, setting out to prove that to become a great nation they didn't need to beat, enslave and starve their inhabitants.

They believed in the principles of democracy, coming from bedraggled, dejected nations to begin life anew.

In the beginning the people with shovel and hoe, tongue and purpose, worked and sweated toward their goal, freedom. They fought the British from the east, the cold from the north, the wilderness and unknown from the west, the traitor and disbeliever from within. Slowly, but surely, as the rising sun in the east, they welded the greatest experiment in democracy that history has ever known.

And the people gathered in the halls, on the soapbox, in the cellars, on the corner, in the barbershop, on the farms. They talked of America, of government, of politics and of strife. Into the night, the builders of America argued on the principles they believed in—with no police to silence their tongues, to deafen their ears.

Forward the people went; and America grew and stretched, sometimes slipping, but always the people were there to boost it back up.

And far across the oceans, nations awoke from their miserable wretchedness and enslavement;

faint sparks of hope began burning in their hearts.

Out of the awful filth of Europe the billions of little people turned towards America, the last hope of freedom-loving men—little men who believed that all men are created equal and no one is entitled to tell them how to believe, what to speak and how to worship.

Into the broad expansions of this open land poured the millions of immigrants who were to donate and give so much to the greatness of this land.

Hope burned brighter in the oppressed; the people began to dream of free nations. The people in America worked and played, fought and died, and America became greater because of them. They fought a war against slavery; they fought a war against war. They said hands off China and told the dictators where to go. The great experiment in democracy was a success—or was it?

The people forgot about the oppressed and miserable outside America. They talked of automobiles and science, movies and vacations, fights and murders, but very little of America and its problems, of the world and its destitution.

And America slipped, and the hopes of all freedom-loving men grew dimmer. The dictator flourished, the slave became plentiful, the world became a hell.

The Hitlers and the Stalins, the Mussolinis and the rest shared the headlines. The people—where were they? At Joe's or Mountain paradise, the Bijou or the pool hall.

The town halls and soapboxes became empty. The groups on the corner and at the barbershop became less frequent. Comics, murder and scandals, society and sports were the main topics of reading in the newspaper. The problems of the nation and the world were thrust in the background in favor of Public Enemy No. 1 and the leading batter in the American league.

In Europe millions were killed—billions were being starved. What had happened to America's threat of hands off China in Asia? The Japs looted and raped, bombed and bayoneted the helpless millions of Chinese as the people stuck their heads in the sand like a group of sick ostriches!!!

It took a stab in the back to wake them up, and with all their mighty force they pushed America back towards the top.

Well, they finally won. One more chance to prove that men could live free, under the government they chose, that men could live peacefully without the danger of war and pestilence that man has known since time immemorial.

But the people washed their hands of the mess and left it in the hands of three men, one a dictator who was appeased on every hand by his two associates.

Back to the comics and movies, the murders, the vacations and the leading batter in the American league.

Over the world, the light grows dimmer. The idea of men ever being able to choose their own government, to voice their opinions, grows more remote, and democracy's last great chance fades into the distance, as the communist and facist take over the world; and the idea of the self destruction of the world seems more plausible and near than at any other time since the beginning of mankind—

But out of the broad expansions of America there is one hope left which can still save the world—and the faces and hopes of the world still look forward toward the people!!!

THE ENDLESS SCHEME OF LIFE

By ERNEST SACKETT

Honorable Mention

Beneath the mighty mountain
I stand

Where the vast snowfields
Glisten brightly in the sun.
All about me is beauty—
This mountain; these animals and shrubs
At the edge of the icefields—
They are objects of a plan
That God has created.
And I understand now
That all things on earth
Have a part to play
In the endless scheme of life.

Here may I take my place,
Beneath the mighty mountain.

AND ALL BECAUSE OF YOU

By JANET DAWE

Second Prize Poem

Rejoice, ye happy nation,
For peace has come at last,
The guns have all been silenced
And the war is of the past.

But take heed ye joyful people
Who think your job is done,
Just look around and you will see
Your job is just begun.

You have no blackened cities,
No scenes of bloody war
To remind you that your nation
Was destroyed by cruel war.

Your children do not cry from want
Of food and warmth and clothes,
For you were saved from all this grief
And why, our dear Lord knows.

Your bodies are not numb and cold,
Nor listless from starvation,
You need not freeze while waiting for
A meager daily ration.

Ah no! for you are safe and sound,
You need not hear that cry,
But while you squander, every day
A hundred thousand die.

You can not see their bodies
Piled in heaps that grow each day,
Nor smell the filthy stench of Death,
That stalks each narrow way.

But from each roadside sepulcher
A voice in vain rings out,
And yes, of course, you glibly say,
I'll help, without a doubt.

So sit by and gloat, you're satisfied,
But just remember, too,
Perhaps today a life was lost,
And all because of you.

METAMORPHOSIS

By Mal Boyd

Youth

I walk a virile vibrant stride, of forcing on,
and guide or I am guided by apprentice feet that seldom seem (though strong) too steady in the stream.
For they are new, almost untried, and oftentimes they wrench and slide as though some god just set them loose;
yet even so, they override
the swirled surrounding sluice.

Though sometimes crudely lettered, rude, uncouth,
there is a strength of effort in my youth.
And I am stronger than the sage,
more powerful than any elder fool,
and dreams, not disillusioned yet with age,
make all the vulnerable world my wading pool.

Oh, I am strong! With confidence
I feel my muscles spill aside the currents when they flex. Oh, I can win the world.
I will! I will! So having sung of some swift-scudding stream
I know that I am stronger, swifter still.

And I can know this now for I am young—for I am young.

Maturity

Time and I have tempered pace, slackened, eased the race to evenness
between the stream and me;
and though I have not yet come to the sea,
one cannot (a mature one)
keep the pace that one had first begun.
But I shall stay abreast,
keep equal with the rest,
and surely not lag slower than the stream.

Perhaps, my luck will true an early dream.
Perhaps, perhaps, the fates will win for me
the world that I have swum and splashed upon, though I have never been successfully the keeper of the key to every dawn.
And though there still are cataracts and mud,
I do not slide, for time is in my blood.
My stride is steady now, though never fast as once it was when wading in the past.
Of truth and faith and honor I am sure.

And I can know this now for I'm mature—for I'm mature.

Old Age

There seems to be a swifter flowing of the current. It is going faster now, more fiercely bent to open oceans than it went one time ago. Yet, those times, too, went quickly by—so quickly by—like reels of flashing film at triple speed that leave mere scattered memories.

Indeed,
it must be nearer time to die.

I wonder, wonder, wonder as one does, of truth. I am not certain now as once I was.

I lose the pace! I fall! I fail!
My blood is harder sent—my blood is pale!

And yet the currents flow as endlessly
as always they have done. They reach the sea, though I cannot. I fail! I fail!
My dreams have not been more than dreams
at all.

I am a fly caught in the currents web.

I gasp! I fight! I sink! The rapids ebb tomorrow still will flow
as constantly as ever it did go before it saw me flounder, drown, grow cold.

And can know this now for I am old—for I am old.

IMAGINATION

By JANET DAWE

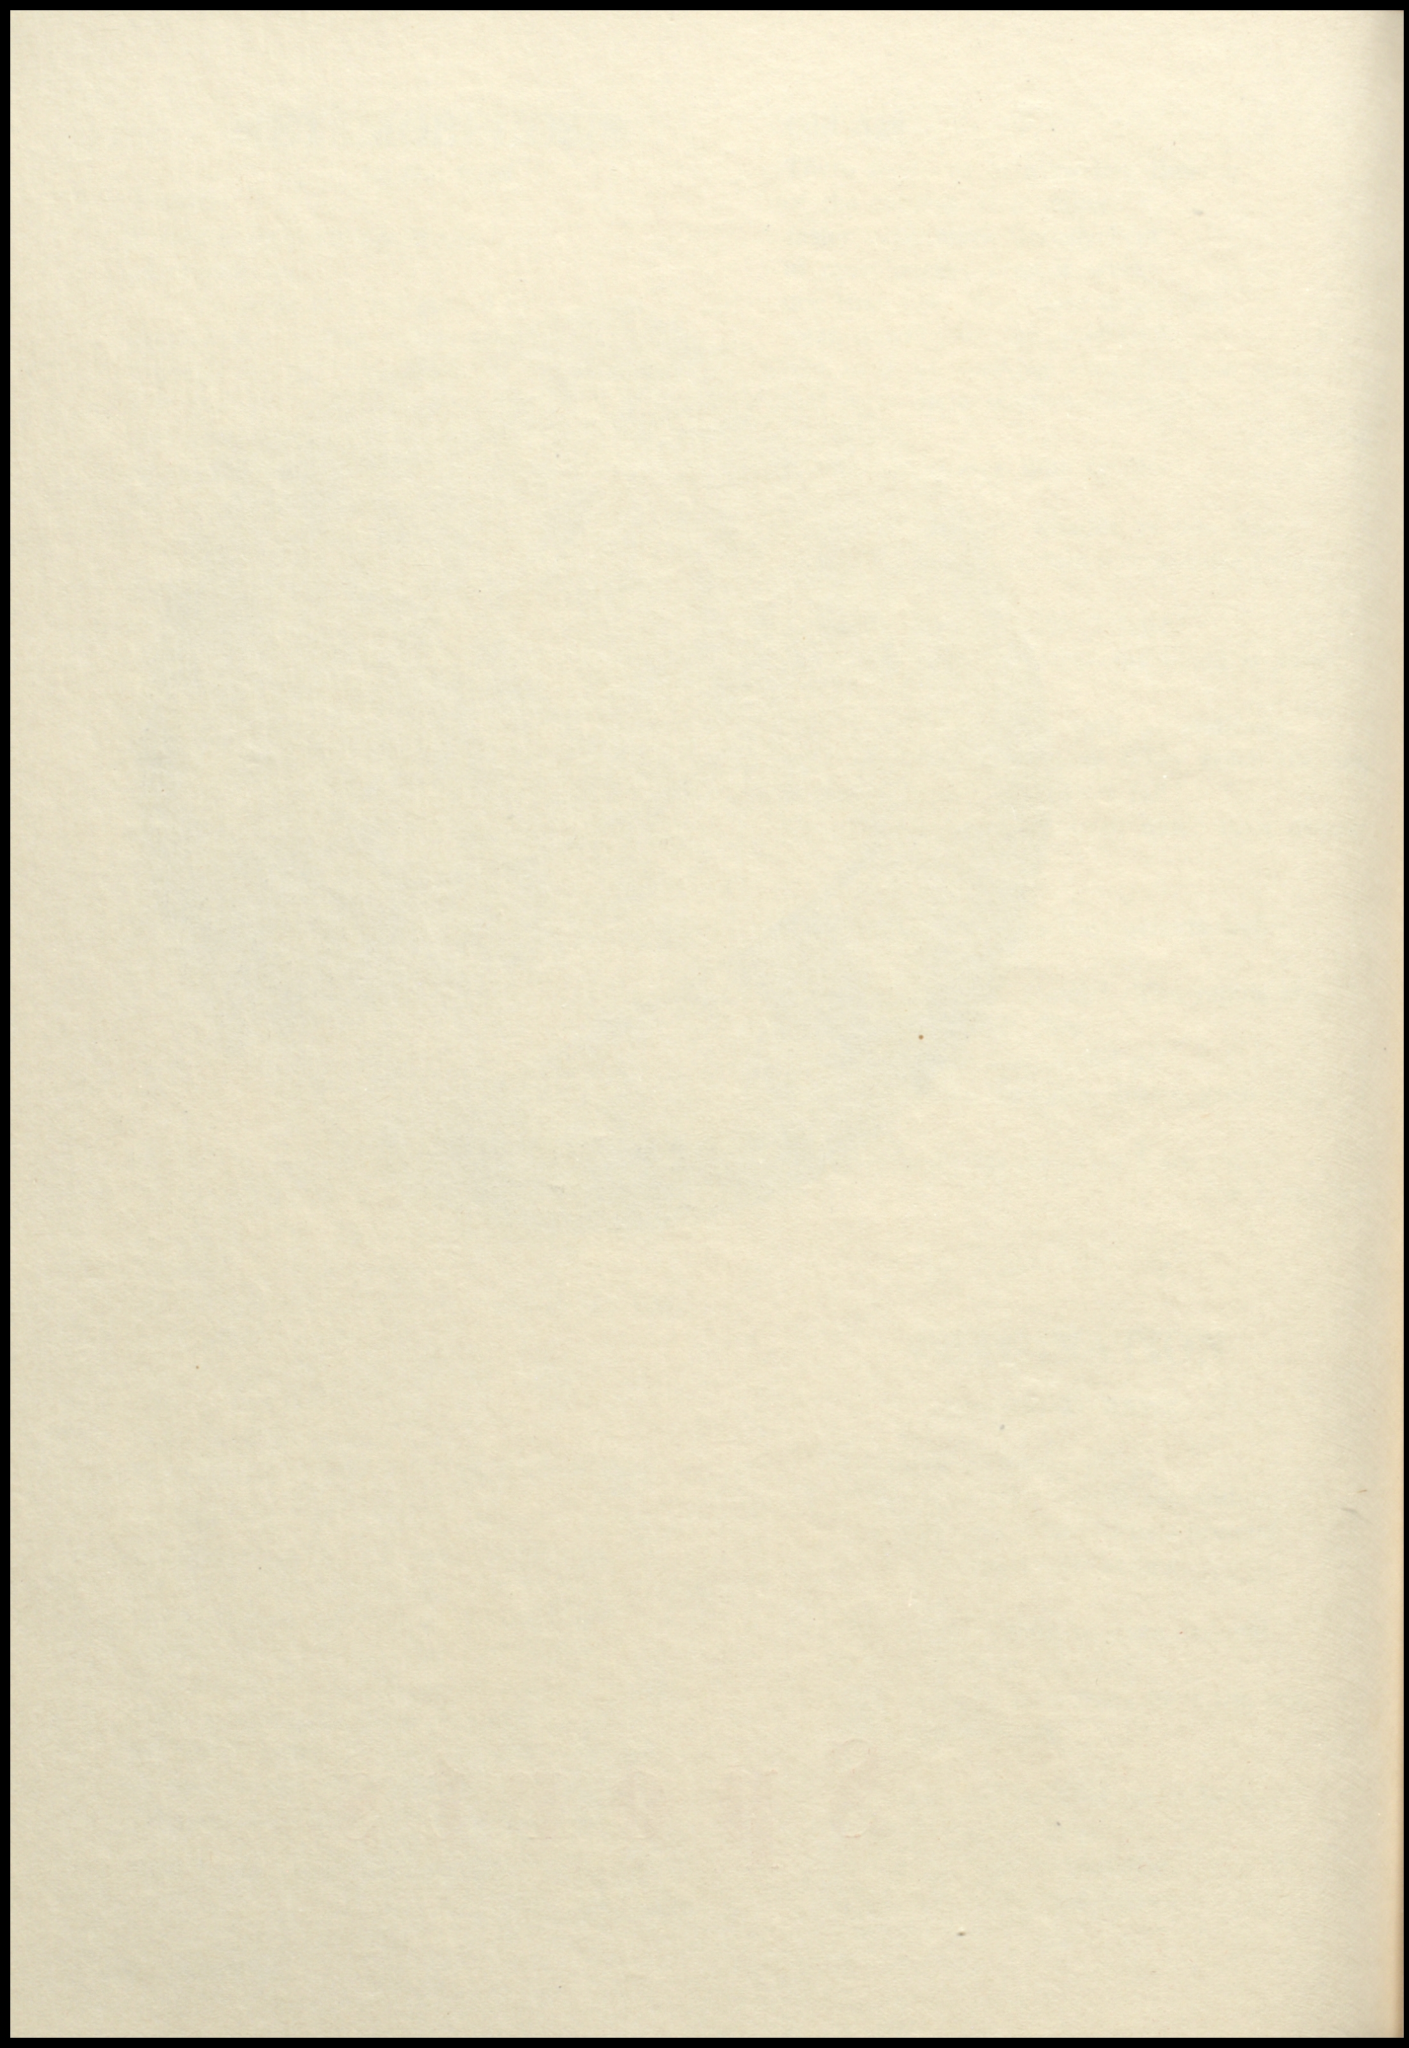

Imagination, funny thing,
It lifts you into worlds astounding,
The children's world of let's pretend,
With happinesss abounding.

Oh, for the power to once descend
Into a child's small mind,
That I might once more have the joy,
Imagination finds.

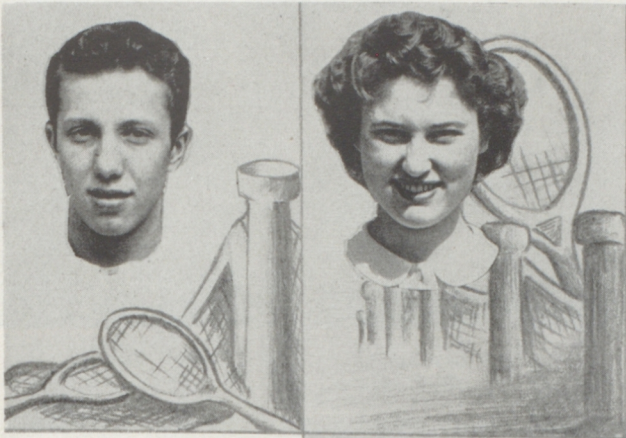

To know the thrill of make believe
And once again to go
Along the path to paradise,
That only childhood knows.

Braves Wind Up Tough Season

THOUGH FIGHTING inexperience and injuries, the 1945 North Central football team never let down and in the final game against Lewis and Clark gained a moral victory in holding the Tigers to a scoreless tie.

Packed deep in veterans from other years, Rogers, Gonzaga and Lewis and Clark ran roughshod over North Central in the early games of the season, but in the final games the Indians made a very creditable showing.

The Indians used the T formation much of the early part of the season, but dumped the tricky formation in favor of a more orthodox type of football during the latter games.

Bill Graham was outstanding, especially on defense; but other than Graham, the Braves were decidedly weak both on offense and defense. North Central's outstanding weakness proved to be the lack of a sticky-fingered wing man to get on the receiving end of Graham's passes.

Certainly one thing that Coach Bonamy will not have to worry about next fall is lack of experienced players. Bonamy will have all but Bob Palmer and John Mancheni in the line, while only Graham will be missing from the first string backfield. Returning lettermen include such creditable performers as Jim Burson, John Perko, Chuck Wilson, Don Olstad, all-city Don Rholf, Dick Washburn, Lowry Bennett; and there will be several others from last years' freshmen, second team and B squad.

Battling for spots on the backfield will be Jack Finley, Bill Evans, Bud Weis and fleet-footed John Byrnhi, plus several outstanding boys developed on the B squad and championship frosh team.

Bill Graham prepares for the kill in an important battle against Rogers. The Pirates won, 26 to 0.

FUTURE championships are coming thick and fast, if we can judge anything by results of Bob Barnard's freshman gridders. The high scoring frosh scored a total of 110 points while holding their hapless opposition to 19.

Accounting for most of the Indians' points were North Central's touchdown twins, Jack Lyons and Malcom Ayers, who like Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard of Army hit pay dirt almost at will. Superb quarterbacking by Fred Martin and a stellar line resulted in a great season for the future varsity gridders.

The climax of the season was a mighty 38 to 0 crushing of North Central's long time rivals, the Lewis and Clark Tigers. Left-half Ayers bulletted over for three touchdowns; right-half Jack Lyons reached pay dirt twice and kicked two conversions; and Melvin Beller, left end, netted the other score as the Indian line kept the unhappy Tigers back under their goal post most of the time.

Basketball

RANKING AS THE NUMBER ONE sport in the nation, basketball has also ranked number one at North Central judging by the great support and enthusiasm it was given from students and fans.

Coach Harold Thompson, in his first season at the helm of the North Central basketballers, guided his team to a good record of 12 wins and 9 defeats. Included in the victories were wins over Coeur d'Alene, runner up in the Idaho State championships, West Valley and Gonzaga, state representatives, and a sparkling 42 to 34 trouncing of Lewis and Clark. The Tigers, a team which had held a jinx over North Central since 1938, were knocked from their tournament spot in the season's number one upset.

With Ron Walker, Lowry Bennett, and Rudy Cozzetto joining forces with lettermen Bud Moe and Sam Hunter, the Indians gained the reputation of a hard fighting, never say die outfit, that refused to read their opponents' press notices. Nine more points in the right places would have spelled a trip to Seattle.

But to make a good first string, you have to have excellent reserves, and that's exactly what North Central had in Paul Ward, Dick Washburn, Ernest Bently, Don Cameron, Don Olstad, Neil Dunchel and Mickey McDougall. Others who supplied plenty of opposition for the regulars included Glenn Burton, Bud Quackenbush, Bud Weiss, Tom Perko, Phil Canup, Alvin Hancock, Jim Lee and Johnny Lee.

Captain Bud Moe, runner up in the scoring race with 120 points, for the second straight year grabbed a berth on the Chronicle all-city team. Earning a spot on the second team was hard fighting Sammy Hunter, the city's finest sportsman. He was voted the inspirational player by his teammates.

Through the continuous efforts of Coach Thompson, North Central now has the finest basketball program in the city, offering fun and recreation to any boy who wants to play basketball. Besides helping boys to keep physically fit, this program has done more than anything else at North Central to lick juvenile delinquency.

COACH BARNARD, coach of the 1945-6 freshman basketball champions.

BEATEN ONLY BY Lewis and Clark in league play, the freshman basketekers, coached by Bob Barnard, ended the 1946 season in first place with a good record of four wins and two losses. During the whole season the little Indians lost only 6 games while piling up a total of 15 wins.

Included were wins over West Valley, Central Valley, Havermale, Libby, Mead, Gonzaga and Rogers. Lewis and Clark, although beaten by each of the other league members, were the freshman jinx, handing them three defeats. The Tigers scored only eight more points than the freshmen.

Boys who won their freshmen numerals were: Herb Schmidt, Fred Martin, Malcom Ayers, Tracy Walter, Jack Lyons, Jim Thomas, Bill Wilkinson, Jim Gray, Wally Freeman, Ronnie Bossio, Don McCoul, Joe Simpson, Tom Brown, Bus Powell, Vincent Piccolo and the managers, Loren Luche and Harley Lyons.

Diamond Men

AN EXTREMELY CLOSE 1946 baseball race was predicted as the Tamarack went to press. Having just completed the first round of play, the Rogers Pirates were resting in first place with three victories and no defeats while Gonzaga was in second place with two victories and one defeat. It looked like anybody's race with six remaining games to be played.

North Central, always a strong finisher, counted on pitchers Dan Penny, Bill Wilkinson and Sam Hunter to pull them out of the cellar.

Alternating behind the plate for the North Central Indians were Jim Burson and Bud Quackenbush. Dick Washburn held down the initial sack while staging a hot battle for second base were Billy Bostrom and newcomer Jack Lyons. Don Cameron at short and Glenn Burton at third rounded out the infield. Cinder Squad Proves Worth

WITH ONLY the nucleus of a few returning lettermen, Coach Guy Barnes built up a powerful track team capable of holding its own against any competition in the state.

In the annual high school track meet at Pullman, April 13, with several schools entered from all parts of the state, the Indians surprised everyone but themselves by finishing second only to the state champions from Rogers.

The opening meet at North Central on April 26 was probably the outstanding of the year for both the Indians and the champion Rogers Pirates.

In one of the outstanding races of the day, N. C.'s Jack Finley upset the apple cart by finishing ahead of Doug McMath in the 440. Other winners for the Red and Black were: Neil Williams, 880; Rudy Cozzetto, low hurdles; Lloyd Raymond, broad jump; and John Brynhi, high hurdles.

The sophomores swept the interclass meet by a score of 66½ points to 49½ points for the juniors.

Sophomore Phil Canup, with a jump of 5' 7" at Pullman, was counted on for several points during the season.

PACED BY FIVE returning lettermen, the prospects of a championship tennis squad loomed brighter than for many a year. Barely nosed out last year by Lewis and Clark's Dave Masterson and company, Coach Ernest Hix and his charges were determined to snatch back the championship so long held by the Indian netmen.

Back to uphold the honors of the Red and Black were three-year-lettermen, Paul Lloyd and Doug Tellefson, while lettermen from last year included Ernest Bentley, John Schwartz and Ron Walker. In case these boys failed to produce the goods, Mr. Hix had three outstanding players in Dan Bond, Allen Wayne and Bill Ruddy.

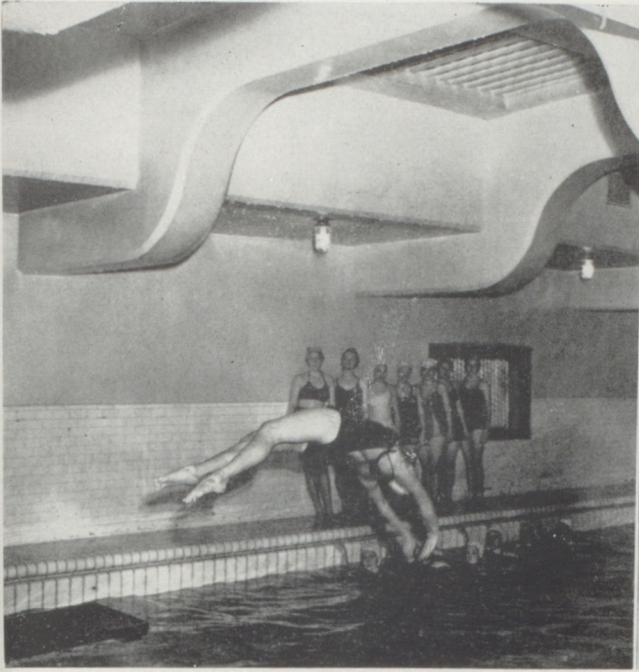

North Central's first city match was probably the most important, the Savages meeting the Lewis and Clark racketeers on their own South Siders' courts.

Fairway Champs

SEEKING THE CITY TITLE for the second straight year, the North Central golf team was again the favored squad on the links this season. The Red and Black team had five returning lettermen, all of whom were among the best golfers in the city.

Watching critically the form of one of his teammates is Dick Kirkendall. Teeing off is Bob Bleck.

Minus the services of Bob Lyons, last year's captain and State Junior champ in 1944, the Indians nevertheless boasted what was probably one of the strongest golf teams in the city. North Central's "coach's dream team" featured such par busters as Junior City champion Bud Moe, Gene May and "Nail" Beeber. Others capable of wielding a "mean stick" were Bob Bleck, Dee Tufts, Martin Krueger and Dick Kirkendall. Bud Quackenbush, an outstanding member of last year's champions, was unable to play as he was a regular member of the North Central baseball team. "Quack" however, gave plenty of proof that he was still decidedly on his game with some excellent performances in the Chronicle cup matches.

Girls' Golf

IT WAS A BEAUTIFUL day for golf—well, anyway it was a beautiful day for the North Siders. For the first time since spring of 1941, the North Central Girls' Golf team defeated Lewis and Clark.

With Donna Jacobsen as captain of the team, the girls met Lewis and Clark on Downriver golf course, October 1. The team played a good game of golf with many of the girls having medal scores down below 115, all of which went to show Lewis and Clark the North Siders could do it to a score of $26\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$.

For the spring semester, Donna Jacobsen was chosen captain of the team for its meeting with the South Siders in May. Betty Freeman was fall golf manager and the only member of that team to graduate. Myrna Iverson was manager for the spring season.

Girls' Tennis

CAPTAINED THIS FALL by Ellen Lockhead, the girls had a little hard luck, losing to Lewis and Clark, 11 to 4. This defeat, however, did not discourage, but showed their need to work harder for the coming meet with Rogers. On the day of the Rogers tournament, the girls were in perfect form, and won from their opponents, 14 to 1.

Captained the spring semester by Barbara Tellefson, the team played four tournaments in May.

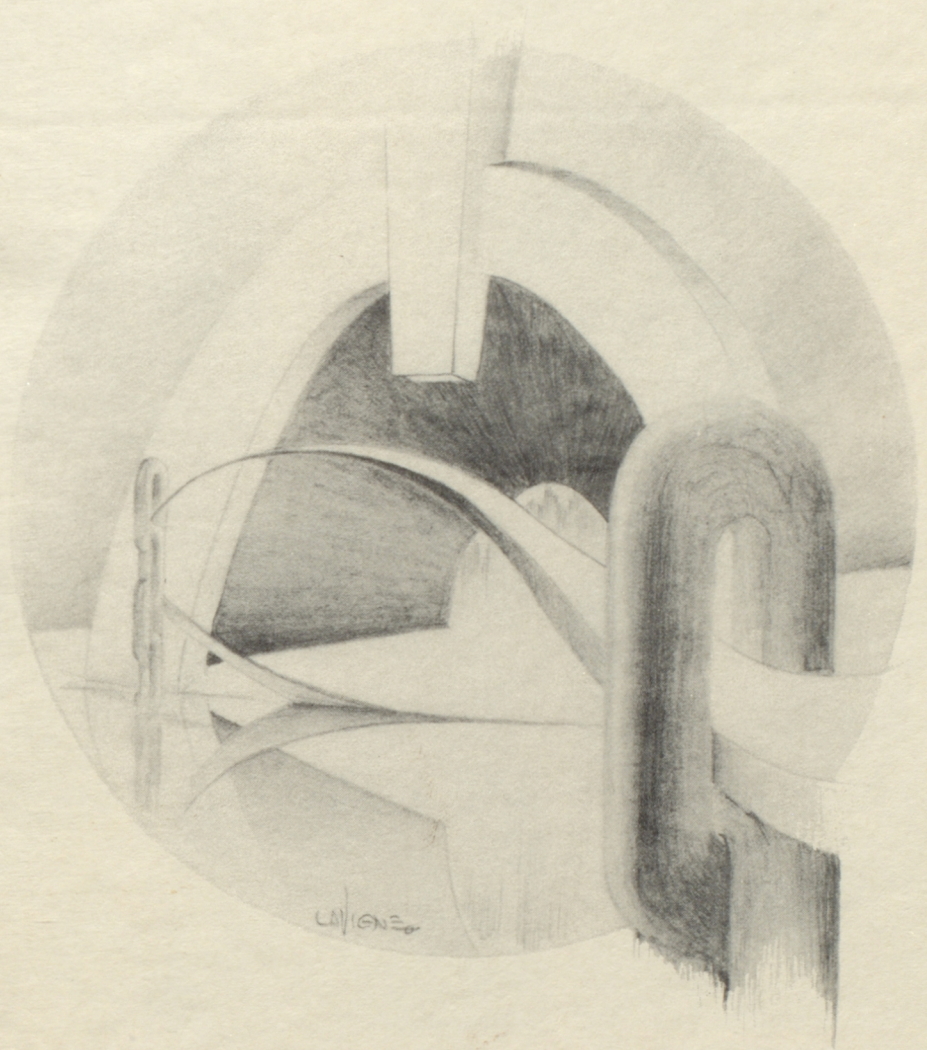

Ellen Lockhead, captain of the 1945 tennis team.

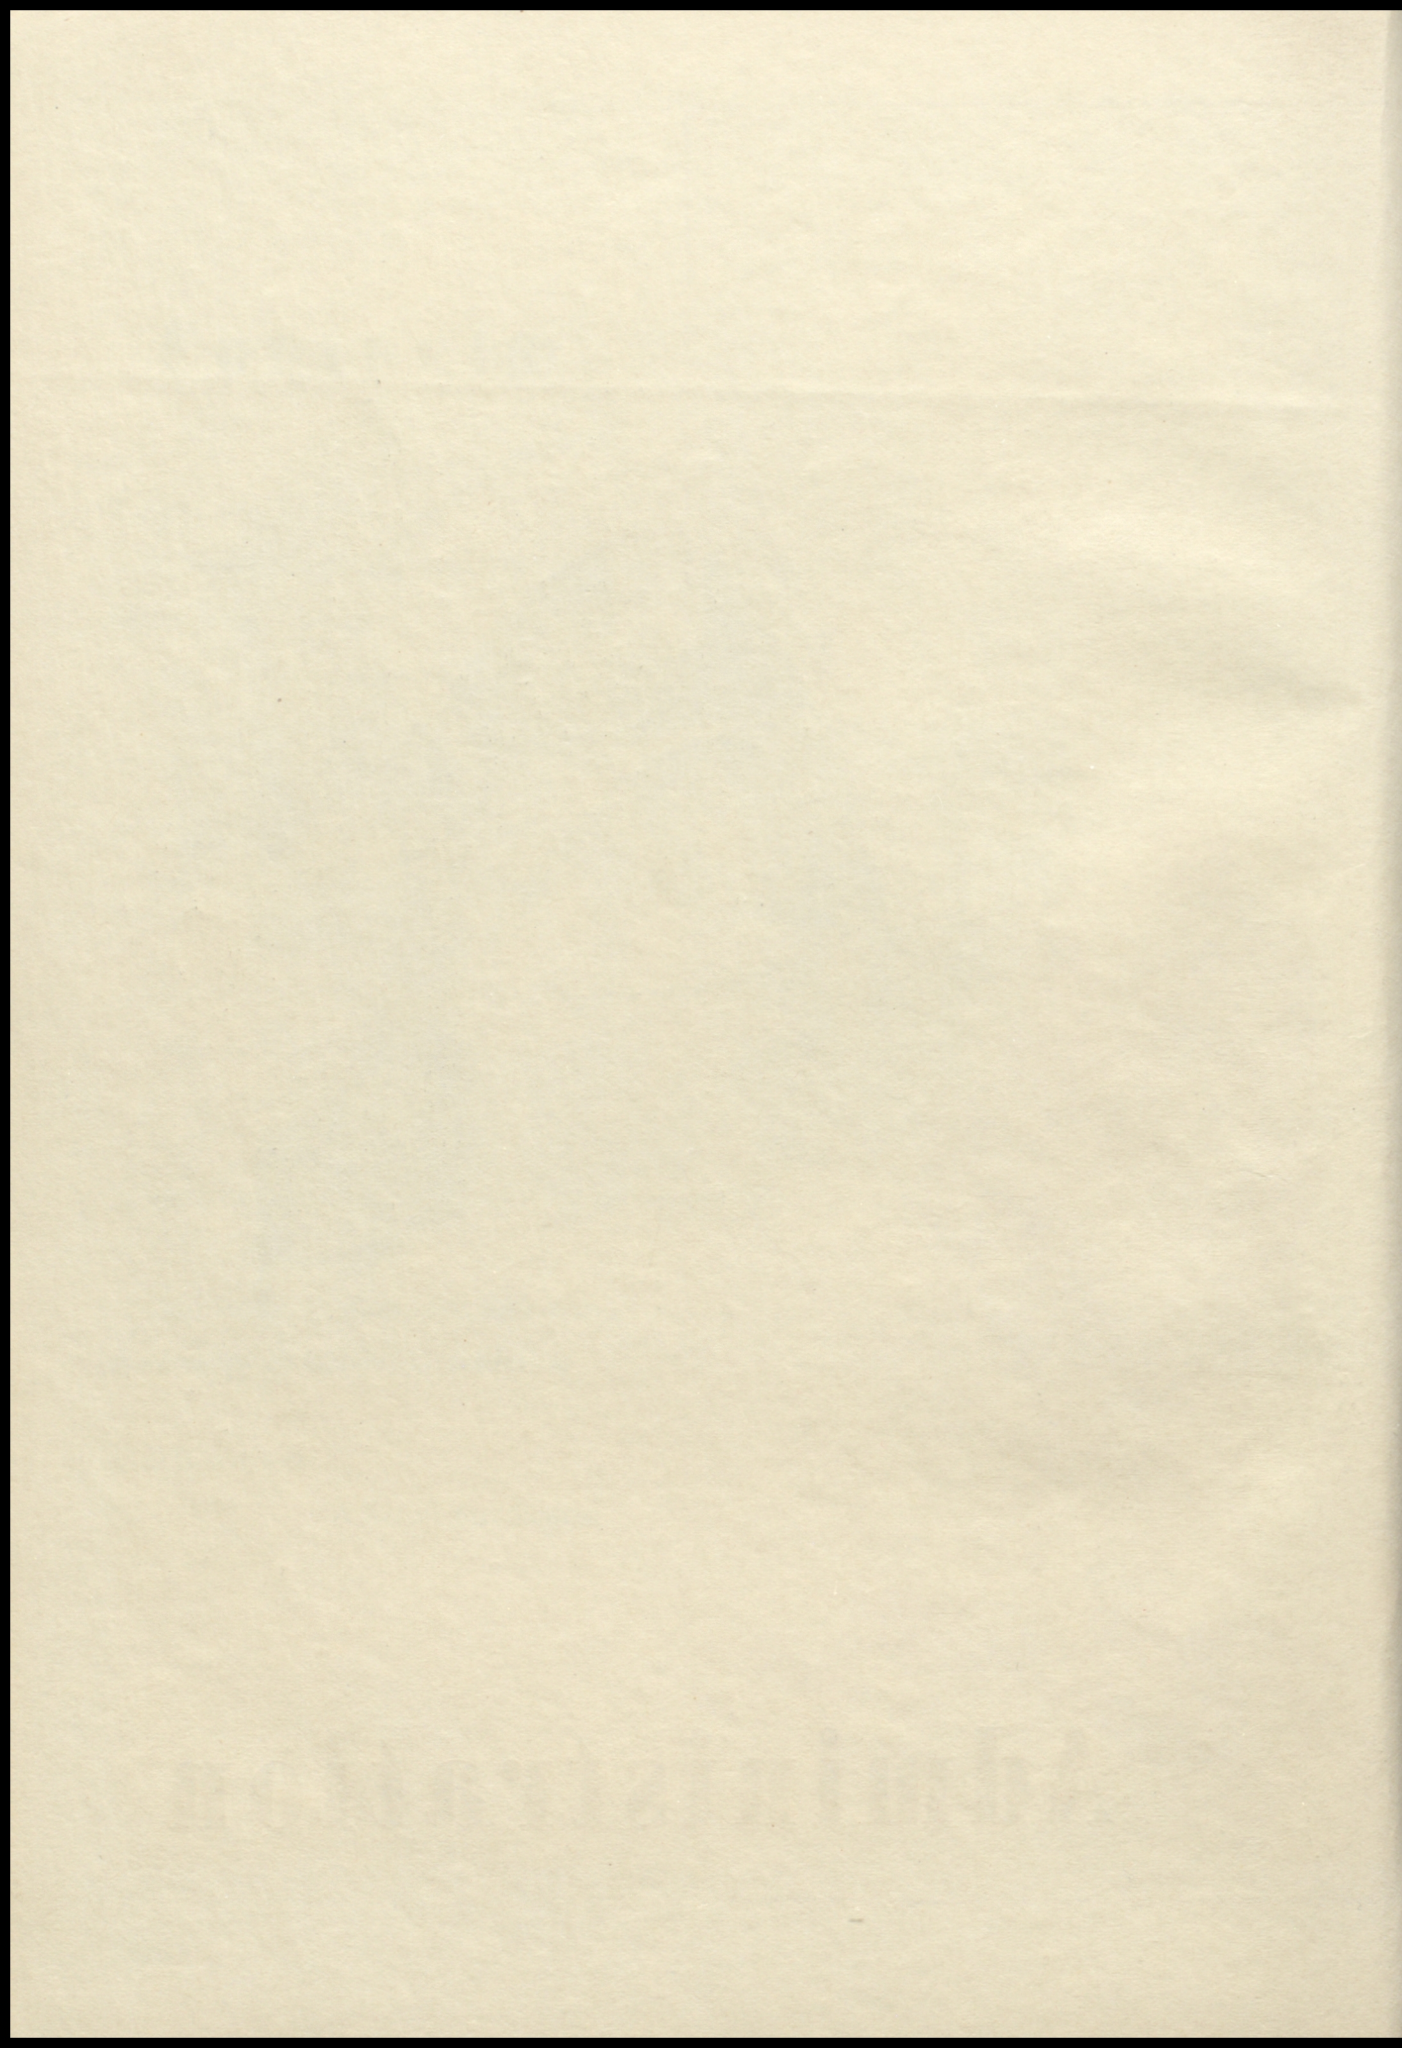

Shown executing a backhand stroke is Miss Pinkham, coach.

YOUR TARGET FOR TOMORROW ...

High School Seniors, Graduates...

A POSITION with A FUTURE

Some universities are already filled to capacity. Veterans will continue to register in large numbers between now and September.

To make sure of a place in the civilian quota for you, it is advisable to apply for admission as early as possible.

KINMAN BUSINESS UNIVERSITY is now accepting registrations for the Summer and Fall Term. For a copy of our "Outline of Courses" write, phone, or visit our office. This bulletin explains the opportunities in business, courses offered, time required, and tuition cost. Make your plans today.
